12 Day Highlights of Kenya and Tanzania Luxury Safari

As many parks are only a short distance from Nairobi International Airport Kenya is a perfect destination for day safaris or a longer multi park tour. Masai Mara National Park is the most popular of all Parks. But Kenya offers a startling array of different landscapes, climates to explore.

Next to seeing some of Africa's most iconic animals in their natural habitat, Kenya invites her visitors to go on culinary and cultural safaris. The more adventurous and active may even wish to climb Mount Kenya, Africa's second highest mountain.

Tanzania's stunning range of wildlife and its many beautiful national parks and conservation areas make it the best place in Africa to go on safari. Whether you choose to do your safari from the back of a truck or want to try something more adventurous such as guided hiking or even canoeing, there is a wealth of options to satisfy.

National Parks of Tanzania, such as Manyara Lake, Ngorongoro, Tarangire, and the world famous Serengeti offer visitors the opportunity to see the famous big five as well as countless other animals, birds, and insects which can be only found here.

Tanzania is also the traditional home of the Maasai people, and no visit to Tanzania would be complete without interacting with these people and paying a visit to the Cradle of Mankind at Olduvai Gorge. For the more adventurous, the opportunity to climb iconic Mount Kilimanjaro or the smaller but no less beautiful Mount Mara is also available. Those seeking sun, sand, and leisure can visit beautiful Zanzibar, a magnificent island retreat whose rich cultural history is every bit as fascinating as its jungles and beaches.
